1. PHASE: STUDY AND RESEARCH

The aim of phase: to begin independent research work under the guidance of the supervisor (scientific module). In line with the characteristics of interdisciplinary social research, students become familiar with methods and topics belonging to several social science fields (study module).

Scientific and teaching activities completed during this phase can be accepted as academic teaching and academic achievement credits of the 2. phase (research and thesis writing phase) according to the credit values indicated. Academic teaching or academic achievement credits are therefore not included in the 120 credits required for the comprehensive exam.

The TeaTime Discussions and Professorial Seminars are also part of the scientific module. It is mandatory for students to attend every semester. At the Professorial Seminar, the student presents their current research to the community of the doctoral school. At the TeaTime Discussions, speakers with broad scientific and business experience present their current research results and achievements.

PHDTanE1	Publishing a scientific publication	1-8	20	mandatory elective
PHDTanRE1	Publishing a scientific review	1-8	5	mandatory elective
PHDKonfE1	Participation in a conference with presentation	1-8	15	mandatory elective

PHDBookE1	Publishing a scientific book as author or co-author	1-8	40	mandatory elective
PHDEditE1	Publishing a scientific book as editor or co-editor	1-8	20	mandatory elective
PHDDefE	research centre disputaion of the first full	1-8	15	mandatory elective draft version of the dissertation

PhDProm	Science promotion (presentation or article)	1-8	5	mandatory elective

2. PHASE: RESEARCH AND THESIS WRITING

The aim of the phase is to complete independent research and write the dissertation. It is necessary to obtain the required 120 credits through Tutoring Consultations, Academic Achievements and Academic Teaching by the end of the 2. phase (the 8th semester of doctoral training). Academic Achievements or Teaching after the 8th semester (The public defense of the first full draft version of the dissertation) do not have credit value.

THE EVALUATION SYSTEM AND REQUIREMENTS

The instructor of the course evaluates the students' performance on a five-point or a three-point scale. The grades of the five-point scale are the following: excellent (5), good (4), satisfactory (3), sufficient (2) and insufficient (1). The grades of the three-point scale: excellent (3), pass (2), fail (1). Course requirements may include a written or oral exam, or writing a paper as specified by the instructor.

Additionally to the announced lectures, students must prepare a research plan in their first semester by November 30, with the guidance of the supervisor. The plan includes the steps they will take regarding their research in the following 4 years. This study plan must be submitted either in person or in electronic format to the administration of the doctoral school (signed by the supervisor). Students have to update their research plans each year of their studies, depending on the development of their research. In each academic year, the deadline for the research plan update is October 15.

The credit values for teaching and research activities are provided for each program in the credit table for the Research and Thesis Writing phase and are also valid for the Study and Research phase. The number of credits to be awarded for achievements will be decided by the Head of Program on the basis of the suggestion of the supervisor and the Secretary of Program.

Students may submit teaching and research activities twice a semester, during the periods announced by the administration of the Doctoral School in the Neptun system. Credit values provided in the credit table of each program are the maximum number of credits that can be awarded for an activity. The amount of credits actually received for a given activity is determined by the Head of Program on the basis of a proposal from the supervisor and the Secretary of Program.

Scientific papers can be the followings: paper published in a book of collected scientific essays, paper published in an academic journal. Chapters in edited volumes count as scientific papers. In the case of articles published in journals the following journals may be considered: Those mentioned as Q1, Q2, Q3 and Q4 in the Scimago journal ranking system, or those included in the journal list of the IXth Scientific Section of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. Additionally, selected journals of the specific Doctoral Program can be accepted. Scientific books written or edited by the doctoral student can be taken into account if they are published at a reputable publisher. To decide if a publisher is reputable doctoral students should contact the Director of Program. Only those academic achievements can be accepted in the organized doctoral program, on which the affiliation with the Doctoral School is shown.

For scientific publications with multiple authors or joint conference presentations, credits are accepted at 100% for up to three authors and 50% for four or more authors. In the case of partial (not fully independent) participation in an educational activity (e.g., teaching a course at the university), the credit for that activity will be prorated in proportion to the actual activity performed.

A requirement for the submission of the doctoral thesis is the publication of at least two scientific papers on the subject of the doctoral thesis.

Tutorial seminars

In those semesters, when tutorial seminars are mandatory, at least one meeting per month is required with the presence of the doctoral student and the supervisor during term-time. Meetings can be face-to-face or online – depending on the actual circumstances. A short memo written by the student is required about these meetings. The doctoral student has to upload the memo to the virtual folder provided by the administration of the doctoral school.
